Poetry.

MAY.

BY LEIGH HUNT.

May ! thou month of rosy beauty !
Month when pleasure is a duty;
Month of maids that milk the kine—
Bosom rich and breath divine :
Month of bees and mouth of flowers ;
Mouth of blossom laden bowers ;
Month of little hands with daises,
Lover's love, and poet's praises ;
Oh, thou merry month complete—
Nay !—that very name is sweet !

May was maid in olden times,
And is still in Scottish rhymes ;
May's the blooming hawthorn bough ;
May's the month that's laughing now.
I no sooner write the word,
Than it seems as though it heard,
And looks up and laughs at me,
Like a sweet face, rosily ;
Like an actual color bright,
Flushing from the paper's white ;
Like a bride that knows her power,
Startled in a summer bower.

If it rains that do us wrong
Come to keep the winter long,
And deny us the sweet looks,
I can love thee in the poet's wages,
Where they keep thee green for ages ;
Love and read thee, as a lover
Reads his lady's letter over,
Breathing blessings on the art
Which commingles those that part.

There is May in books forever,
May will part from Spenser never
May's in Milton—May's in Prior—
May's in Chaucer, Thomson, Dyer ;
May's in all the Italian books ;
She has old and modern nooks,
Where she sleeps with nymphs and elves
In happy places they call shelves,
And will rise and dress your rooms
With a drapery thick with blooms.
Come, ye rains, then, if you will,
May's at home, and with me still ;
But come, rather thou, good weather !
And find us in the fields together.

ONLY WAITING.

Only waiting till the shadows
Are a little longer grown ;
Only waiting till the glimmer
Of the day's last beam is flown ;
Till the night of earth is faded
From the heart once full of day ;
Till the stars of heaven are breaking
Through the twilight soft and gray.

Only waiting till the reapers
Have the last sheaf gathered home ;
For the summer-time is faded,
And the Autumn winds have come.
Quickly, reapers ! gather quickly
The last ripe hours of my heart ;
For the bloom of life is withered,
And I hasten to depart.

Only waiting till the angels
Open wide the mystic gate,
At whose feet I long have lingered,
Weary, poor and desolate ;
Even now I hear the footsteps,
And their voices far away ;
If they call me, I am waiting,
Only waiting to obey.

Only waiting till the shadows
Are a little longer grown ;
Only waiting till the glimmer
Of the day's last beam is flown ;
Then from out the gathering darkness
Holy, deathless stars shall rise,
By whose light my soul shall gladly
Tread its pathway to the skies.

SPRING WEATHER.

It shines, it rains,
Then shines again,
What does the weather mean ?
It hangs in doubt,
The sun comes out
With drizzling mists between.
Now dark, now light,
Like day, like night,
'Tis changing, fickle weather,
It mists at times,
Then rain or shines,
And sometimes all together.
Oh, now I see,
It is like me.
A wise head and a dunce.
I fret, I smile,
Then cry awhile,
Then sometimes all at once.
I pout, I pet,
Well pleased I get,
Both diligent and lazy.
In my own way,
In such a day,
When rainy, shiny, hazy.

A LOVE WARNING.

O taste no more the magic cup,
Although its rim is gold,
Nor sacrifices offer up
At altars that are cold !
Call pride to seal the fount of tears,
Distrust to freeze the soul,
'Till all its deepest hopes and fears
Are chained by self-control.
Lavish no dew upon the sand,
No gem upon the wave ;
Like one who treads a stranger-land,
Walk lonely to the grave.
Yield up, for aye, thy cherished dream,—
Seek pleasure, wealth or fame ;
Think love a poet's idle theme,
And constancy a name ! [Tuckerman.

LOVING AND CHASTENING.

BY MRS. S. D. CHAPIN.

Every man has his besetting sin, and generally he knows it. It is useless to argue with the lover of strong drink to prove to him that he is the slave of that base passion. The dishonest man feels the tempter at work upon his heart, moving his fingers towards that which is not his own. The sabbath breaker expects no one to praise him for his strict observance of holy time, neither does he who violates the fourth commandment look for a prominent place among the advocates of moral reform. How strange that the outwardly vile should know and acknowledge their errors, while those of reputable lives strive to hide with a thick mantle even from themselves those secret sins which also wrong society, and which, just as surely, eat out purity and vital godliness from the heart. How apt are Christians to confess in public prayer only those general sins, which any may and which everybody does commit, and yet remain respectable in the world ! How often do we hear pardon asked for 'sins of omission and sins of commission,' leaving the world to guess what they are. But who was ever known to confess his meanness, or his covetousness ? No one.

A cardinal, who had been father-confessor to people of all ranks, to the king and emperor, the ambassador, the statesman and the noble lady, as well as the menial and the beggar, gives his experience on this point. He says he received at the confessional persons who had committed every imaginable and some imaginable sins ; from treason, murder, robbery and transgressions too vile to mention, down to the merest frailty of spirit ; but that no one has plead guilty to or sought pardon for covetousness.

And here is the chief danger to which the sin exposes the Christian ;—it is a secret foe, lying at ambush in the breast, unsuspected by its entertainer. No one can believe that he harbors so mean a vice, and therefore few are on the defensive against it. And yet it is the very one which sets in motion most of the black catalogue passing ever before the eye like a dark and disagreeable panorama.

The worldling, under the influence of the raving viper, often goes on through a long life in seeming prosperity, adding house to house and land to land ; and heaping up gold as if it could purchase a ransom for his spirit in the day of reckoning. God looks on and keeps silence ; the man has chosen his own way, and He suffers him to receive the desires of his heart, saying, 'Let him alone.'

But when the all-consuming passion gains entrance to the real Christian's heart, it is far otherwise. The Refiner, who has promised to purify him and to keep him to the end, will not look quietly on, while love of money is sapping the fountain of his joy and hindering his communion with God. If he selfishly heap up gold, the Chastener will, sooner or later, overthrow it ; if he line his nest with down, He will stir it up that he may learn the lesson of earth's vanity. When our neighbors' children sin, we keep silence ; but when our own rebel, we strive to win them back ; and unless entreaty and reasoning prevail, love impels us to chastise the dear transgressors. Thus does God deal with his own ; He will not suffer sin upon them.

'Alas, all these things are against me !' exclaimed Mr. Hastings, as he entered his dwelling in an abrupt manner, his face flushed with excitement. 'I have felt all day as if I must cry out with Job, 'O that it were with me as in months past, when the candle of the Lord shone upon me !'

'What's new now, sir ; please 'low me to ask ;' said a poor man of all works, who was at the moment heaping wood upon the sitting-room fire.

'Why, Sam, there's enough new ; the iron grey has broken her leg, and that before I've had five dollars worth of service from her. It is two hundred dollars thrown away. She did it trying to leap a fence !'

Sam gave the shortest possible groan, and, taking the long-handled brush swept the white ashes from the hearth, and blew the smoking embers into a blaze.

'Who left the stable door open, sir, so's she got out ?' asked Sam, a gleam of conscious innocence lighting up his dull eye.

'Why, I suppose I did it myself boy ; but that don't make the loss any easier to bear. It is only, as I said, one link in the chain of my misfortunes ; and what the end will be I cannot tell.'

'After all, dear,' replied a soft voice, 'the losses are very small in comparison with what we have left. These things, I know, are trials to the temper ; but we must learn to endure them patiently. It was far better that the lightning struck the barn rather than the house, last summer Then, when the freshet carried away the mill, how much easier to bear that than a void such as death might have made in our little flock. It is no small blessing to look on six rosy faces, all in healthful sleep. O, if one only was missing from the pillow, we should know then, as we have never known, what sorrow is.'

'Yes, yes, thoughtfully replied the business man, a little softened ; I know it and know that I do not learn patience from all these crosses as I ought ; for that is doubtless their design.'

'One design, no doubt replied the good wife, whose busy needle flew as if to atone in some degree for their misfortunes.'

'One design, what other do you see in the lesson ?' asked the husband.

'This is not our rest ; we have here no abiding city ;' 'Lay up for yourself treasures where moth and rust cannot corrupt, nor thieves break through and steal "— These words of the holy writ were her only reply.

'But my dear, do you think I need to learn these lessons now I have a hope which floods cannot carry away ; a hope worth more to me than all the riches of the earth.'

'I know you have, but your worldly neighbors won't believe it. They point to you and several brethren saying, 'what do these men more than others.'

'Well, really my dear, I looked for more sympathy from you. I have just been down to ask Deacon Evans what I must do for iron grey, and he hinted that perhaps I was covetous, and God was showing me that he had power to scatter faster than I could gather. I thought it an exceedingly unkind insinuation ;' and he glanced inquiringly at his wife. But she was silent.

'I'm sure, dear,' he continued 'I have given more than many. My book shows thirty dollars to benevolent operations, besides paying my pew rent !'

'Was not your income from all sources two thousand over and above your losses ?' asked the wife.

'Yes, but you also scatter abroad amongst the poor, which perhaps doubles my thirty.'

'No, it cannot do that. God will not receive my sacrafice from your hands nor yours from mine. What I have done is my own individual act, which has cost me one large and many little sacrafices. Had I not used it thus, I should have spent it for myself ; so you are none the poorer,'

'I believe,' remarked the husband restlessly, 'I could part with every cent I own if God required it, and I could see the good it was doing elsewhere, but to see hundreds consumed by fire, carried away by flood, or destroyed by accident, is more than I can comprehend. Squire Brown never gave away five dollars in his life, and everything he puts his hand to prospers.'

'Our neighbor is having his good things in this life. I thank God that he is not leaving us to the same fate,' said the good wife.'

'If I could only understandit, ejaculated Mr. Hastings.

'You don't want to understand it, sir,' came in sharp tones from the outside of the sitting room door, which poor simple Sam had left ajar. You don't, you won't understand it, though the master is tellin' you in words plain enough for even poor me.'

Sam had just enough sense to forbid his standing by the fire and listening to the conversation of his superiors ; but not enough to prompt him to go away altogether. So he had placed his ear to the crack, and stood listening to what so deeply interested him. ''Tain't no mystery to me,' he added, almost unconsciously.

'I'se been watching the Lord, how he was managin' you ever since you was converted. I see just what He means.'

'Well, come in, then, and let's hear your judgment of the matter, my poor friend ;' said his master in a softened tone. 'What does all this mean ?'

'It means, sir,' said the simple creature —' turn right about ; stop lovin' money, stop making it for yorself ; but earn it as fast as you can for the Lord. If you'd a sold the hay we didn't need, without waitin' in hopes 'twould rise, 'twouldn't 'a been burnt in the barn ; so, too, with the meal you had stored in the lofts, when the flood came and carried away our mill. So again with the new hoss ; we didn't need him no more nor we want a fifth wheel to the wood-cart, and the two hundred dollars, if you'd gin it away would 'a been a savin ; for then it wouldn't eat nothin' ! But though there ain't no wood here to keep widow Blake's fire burnin', nor no meal to prevent Brown's motherless children from starvin,' there's lots of everything to keep a fancy hoss, just to look at and to make poor folks stare and hate you as you ride along to church. They say if you was a Christian, you'd be more like Christ, who humbled himself and tried to raise other folks. Last night when I went to the saddler's shop to git the harness mended, the men in there was talkin' 'bout you. Smith said 'twas like pullin' teeth to get his wages from you ;' and Jones said-'you'd never get into heaven, 'cause you wouldn't try, 'less you could take the mill and the farm with you.' Some one said you'd try to go in if there was no admission fee asked.' And so on they 'bused you till they saw me. They call you awful selfish and small for a rich man'

'Sam did you listen to all that, and never speak a word for me ? Couldn't you deny it ? Couldn't you tell them I had a large family, and that I must lay up something for them ?'

No sir, no, sir ; I couldn't say 'he minds not his own things'; he bears other people's burdens ; he gives from one hand as fast as God puts into the other. I couldn't tell 'em you must lay up for the children, for they may die 'fore you. I couldn't say nothing'; but I'll tell you what I thought. 'Long time my master slipped on pretty easy, as mean and as selfish as if there wasn't anybody but himself in the world. Then he was nobody's child, and nobody looked after him ; but by and by God took him into his family ; and now he's gettin' 'tended to. God will show these men soon whether he's a Christian or no.' One loss has come after another, and I watched you, master, to see if you woke up to what He was doin'.' I'se been tremblin', lest you'd fly up some day and say to your soul, 'curse God and die ;' but you hain't yet. But I'll tell you, sir, God bears long and saves a house or a city for the sake of one righteous soul ;' and Sam turned his eye and pointed his long finger towards the meek woman, who, doubtless, stood between the wounded Saviour and her offending husband.

'Sam !' exclaimed the master, 'do people really call me a mean, covetous man ?'

'Yes, sir ;' replied the candid hireling without any softening comments.

'I covetous ? Do you hear that, my dear ? I a reproach to the cause I love ! It cannot be !'

But it was for all that ; and the Lord who loved him did not remove the chastening hand, until he saw, confessed and forsook his sin. This mighty victory over selfishness was not accomplished so easily as by the removal of produce and mills. These were but the beginning of the process of weaning from the world. For a season they had their effect, but it was only as the early cloud and morning dew. He was often reproved ; but plunging again into the world, he hardened his heart and forgot God's hand in his prosperity. But for all that, he was not cast away, but was still alternately wooed by mercies and chastened by judgements. True for the time it was not joyous but grievous, but in the end—and that was not till his sun had well nigh set—it brought forth the peaceable fruits of righteousness. It was not until much of his treasure had been spent for medical attendance, for coffins, and graves, not until the bright little heads were missed one by one from their prayer-hallowed pillows ; not until four mounds were covered with fresh sod in the little family cemetery, that he really believed that he was indulging in "covetousness, which is idolatry.' And even then he tried to compromise with conscience by giving a little more now, and promising a great deal when he should die ; but it was of no avail. God had begun to break down the unhallowed gold spirit in his heart ; and He never leaves his work half done.

It is the last stroke that breaks the rock. This poor earth laden brother had always one refuge, one arm of flesh to lean upon when smitten. He seemed to feel that his wife—the pure in heart—dwelt securely 'in the cleft of the rock,' and that for her sake and in answer to her prayers, he should be guarded through life and upheld in death

This last strong support failed him ; a fifth mound was raised beside the rest ; and he then felt that he was alone, so far as earthly succor went, his two youngest boys still claimed his care ; the rest of his loved ones were safely folded above, free forever from sorrow, sin and death.— Much of his treasure had flown, as God has said it would, 'on wings towards heaven' ; and as he looked back upon the past, he mourned that his life had been so nearly useless, and that the gold he had lost had not been secured in the Bank of Heaven. Frail, erring and selfish as he had been, he rejoiced to believe that he should yet come off conqueror ; often quoting for his own comfort, 'Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth.'

Better far to devise liberal things and to execute generous deeds, that we may ever walk beside and imitate Him who "giveth liberally and upbraideth not.' The converted victims of covetousness 'shall be saved so as by fire,' but they lose much of the heaven begun below.

They have a prompt mode of settling breach-of-promise cases in Greece. A case of the kind recently occurred, when the jilted maiden took the law into her own hands, and having watched an opportunity, pounced upon her rival, and cut her head clean off. Both parties were shepherdesses, and this little drama took place at Cyparissia, a very few miles from Athens.

Horse-Taming.

Directions for Taming

The Boston Traveller has the following article on Mr. Rarey's system of horse taming :

'We saw Mr. Rarey in this city some two years since, and had a long and interesting conversation with him in regard to his peculiar mode of subduing wild and vicious horses. Mr. Rarey is a small and rather spare person, the peculiarity about him being a very keen eye. His method of managing a vicious animal entirely precluded the use of force or fear, and he represented that his power was obtained solely through certain herbs and drugs, first subduing the desire of the horse to injure him, and then by inspiring the beast with affection and confidence he is enabled to do whatever he choses with him. These herbs and drugs are perfectly harmless, and as Sir Richard Airey says, 'there is nothing in the treatment but what any horseman would approve of. Mr. Rarey did not communicate his secret to us, but we have no doubt his treatment is substantially the same as that described in the following extract which has been floating through the papers of this country for several years.

The horse castor is a wart or excrescence, which grows on every horse's fore legs, and generally on the hind legs. It has a peculiar rank musty smell, and is easily pulled off. The ammoniacal effuvia of the horse seems peculiarly to concentrate in this part, and its very strong odor has a great attraction for all animals, especially canine and the horse itself.

The oil of Rhodium possesses peculiar properties. All animals seem to cherish a fondness for it, and it exercises a kind of subduing influence over them.

For the oil of Cumin the horse has an instinctive passion—both are original natives of Arabia, and, when the horse scents the odor, he is instinctively drawn towards it.

The directions given for taming horses are as follows :

Procure some horse-castor, and grate it fine. Also get some oil of Rhodium, and oil of Cumin, and keep the three separate in air-tight bottles.

Rub a little of Cumin upon your hand, and approach the horse in the field, on the windward side, so that he can smell the Cumin. The horse will let you come up to him then without any trouble. Immediately rub your hand gently on the horse's nose, getting a little of the oil on it. You can lead him anywhere. Give him a little piece of the castor on a piece of loaf sugar or potato.

Put eight drops of oil of Rhodium in a lady's silver thimble. Take the thimble between the thumb and middle finger, stopping the mouth of the thimble to prevent the oil from running out, whilst you open the mouth of the horse. As soon as you have opened the horse's mouth, tip the thimble over upon his tongue, and he is your servant. He will follow you like a pet dog. He is now your pupil and your friend. You can teach him anything, only be kind to him, be gentle. Love him and he will love you. Feed him before you eat yourself. Shelter him well ;—groom him yourself, keep him clean, and at night always give him a bed at least a foot deep.

In the winter season, don't let your horse stand out a long time in the cold without shelter or covering, for the horse is a native of a warm climate, and in many respects his constitution is as tender as a man's.

If you want to teach him to lay down, stand on his left side ; have a couple of leather straps about six feet long ; string up his left foot with one of them around his neck ; strap the other end of it over his shoulders ; hold it in your hand, and when you are ready, tell him to lie down, at the same time gently, firmly, and steadily pulling on the strap, touching lightly on the knee with a switch. The horse will immediately lie down. Do this a few times, and you can make him lie down without the strap.'

Mr. Rarey has subdued many viscious horses in different parts of the country, accounts of which have frequently been published. Among other cases was that of a horse in Washington, which could not be handled. Under Mr. Rarey's tuition, in an hour and a half he made the horse so gentle that he rode it down the open street without a bridle, beating a drum while seated on his back.'

Robins seek to build their nests near human habitation, and will seek the same spot to rear their young from year to year. We have an instance of this in a robin that for several years has had its nest in the ship yard of Mr John Currier, in Newburyport, it has become so domesticated—so accustomed to the workmen and the noise of the ship yard, that this year it has built between the frames of the ship, the men were at work and even hammering within a few feet of her. So much of a favorite has the bird become that for her accomodation Mr. Currier will leave off the plank over the nest till she has hatched her brood.

Historical.

MEMOIR OF RHODE ISLAND.

1720.

A General Assembly was called by the Governor's warrant, probably in consequence of the receipt of the last letter from Connecticut, and met at Newport on the 7th of July, 1720.

"Whereas, his honor the Governor, hath communicated to this assembly, a letter from the Governor and Company of his Majesty's colony of Connecticut, directed to the governor of this colony, wherein they refuse to stand to, and comply with, the bounds between the two colonies, as settled by commissioners of both colonies at Stonington in the year 1703 ; upon the consideration whereof, and of the farther difference between this colony and the Massachusetts bay,

It is voted and resolved by this assembly and by the authority of the same it is enacted, That the Hon. Joseph Jencks, Esq., our deputy Governor, be and he is hereby appointed agent for this colony, to appear before his Majesty in council in Great Britain, and there to represent this colony with Mr. Richard Partridge, our present agent there, or without him, as causes and matters may require ; there to manage the affairs of this colony for the settling of the boundary between this colony and those of the Massachusetts bay, and Connecticut ; and all other business that may arise or happen ; and that his honor the Governor give him a commission accordingly.'

The act goes on to provide for the expenses of the agency, instructions to the agents &c.

The assembly met again the 17th of July when they also appointed Capt. John Jencks 'to wait upon his father during the time of his agency in Great Britain,' for which he was allowed £30 sterling per annum, and his expenses paid.

He must have died soon after his arrival in England, as we find the following vote passed at the June session of the assembly in 1721

'Voted that the widow of Doct. John Jencks, who deceased in the colony's service, in Great Britain, have £10 allowed her out of the General Treasury of this colony. It being a gratuity for the extraordinary service of her deceased husband.'

By the record Gov. Jencks appears to have returned and presented his accounts to the assembly in 1821, which amounted to £301, 15s. 0d.

The assembly met at Providence on the last Wednesday in October, 1720, at which nothing was done worthy of notice.

Reuben Hall was executed for murder this year.

Traditions of Block Island.

On request made to Wm. P. Sands, an inhabitant of Block Island, we have obtained the following tradition, principally from on ancient and very reputable lady, an aunt of his, who related as follows :

That the origin of the name of the Island (contrary to the statement of historians) was derived from the following circumstances :

'A Dutchman by the name of Van Block deserted from a vessel in a small boat, and landed on the island while it was exclusively possessed by the Indians, Moncher, the Sachem of the island employed him to erect a stockade fort on a small island in a small lake of the island, for his defence against the subjects of the Massasoit Sachem of the Wampanags, as also the Indians from Long Island, both of whom were in the habit of making hostile incursions into the island. The Sachem afterwards, had the said Van Block executed for liberties he had taken with his daughter, and caused his head to be cut off and placed on one of the gate posts at the entrance of the fort. This little Island has ever since been called Fort Island and the name of Block Island was given the main island by the Europeans and colonists from the said Van Block.

We also obtained from the same source the following tradition of the ship Palatine :

She was ran on shore on Block Island about the year 1719 or 20, but a northeast gale and high tide floated her off after lying several days. She was from Holland bound to Pennsylvania with emigrants. Having a long passage, and being put on short allowance, most of the emigrants died from hardships and disease, arising, as they believed, principally from the desire of the captain to appropriate their effects to his use. The surviving passengers, 16 or 17 in number, were landed, but in so diseased a state, that three only survived, who remained and became inhabitants of the Island. One lady passenger who had much gold and silver plate on board refused to quit the ship ; she remained on board and must have perished, as the ship was never heard of after.

One year after, the Palatine light, as it is called, appeared in the offing, and has continued occasionally to appear up to the year 1832, since which it has not been observed. Some of the silver cups which belonged to the passengers are still to be seen on the Island.

Newport Mercury.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 29, 1858.

REMOVAL.

THE MERCURY OFFICE having been removed from the old stand, to the 'Vose Building,' Northwest corner of Market square and Thames street, we shall be happy to see our friends there, and shall endeavor to serve them in all things as heretofore.

The Mercury Reading Room is well supplied with papers from various quarters and we shall also endeavor to make it a pleasant resort. Subscribers and strangers visiting the city are respectfully invited to visit us in our new and improved location.

Election day passed off well and in a quiet and becoming manner. The day was fine up to twelve o'clock, when the wind hauled to the southeast, and after that it was several degrees cooler, but it was not rainy from morning till night, and that is more than we could say for several days before that period. His Excellency the Governor and members of the Legislature came down in the Perry on Monday, and were received by the Artillery, Col. Carr, with an appropriate salute. Then the line formed and marched to the Atlantic House, the Governor's head-quarters. On Tuesday the procession was formed at 10 A. M. by Sheriff Lake, in the order announced in our last. The Artillery and troops from Fort Adams doing escort duty. The music was by Gilmore's Brass Band. In the course of the day the military paraded through the several streets, and in the afternoon were reviewed by Gov. Dyer. At an early hour the Governor was proclaimed; the old brass field-pieces belched forth a most audible echo of the proclamation from the balcony, and his Honor was escorted to the hotel, where another salute was fired by the Artillery, and with this, we believe, ended the ceremonies of the day. The troops from Fort Adams were a great accession, the Artillery appeared in their new uniform, which is very becoming, and the committee, or whoever got it up, is deserving of praise for the good taste displayed.—It is not conspicuous or marked by strong contrasts, but promises to be serviceable, and will wear well in more senses than one.

Of course we had the usual number of visitors for the day. The number was somewhat larger than last year, taking the steamboat count as a criterion, and all were very orderly. There may have been disturbances, but we heard of none. Hand-organs and other kinds of "wandering minstrels" thronged the street, making the air hideous with repetitions of "Old Dog Tray," and "Pop Goes the Weasel," with here and there a dilapidated fragment from "Norma," or some other opera tune; but coppers did not come in fast, and, in fact, there was but little money put in circulation on that day. The candy stores could not have done a very stiff business, and the oyster and confectionary stands on the Parade had nothing to boast of in the way of trade. Times are hard and money is scarce.

The English are noted for their attention to the growth of trees, and they have set us an example that we should profit by now, for the day will come when we shall have no trees but those planted by hand and reared expressly for their wood. Our forests are fast falling before the settlers, lumber has become extravagantly high compared with prices twenty years ago, and every year it is more and more difficult to obtain certain qualities.—These we must eventually raise, and now is the time to begin the work. It is said that "over ninety years ago the larch was introduced into Scotland from the Tyrol, by the Duke of Athol, and he lived long enough to see a war ship built for the British navy out of larches raised by himself. The larch is now, from its rapid growth and great value, the most profitable timber tree of Great Britain. For more than forty years the botanical and horticultural societies, nurserymen and land-owners have ransacked creation to find new, rare and valuable plants and trees. The forests of Liberia, the plains of China, the Himalaya mountains, the woods of Oregon and California, the South Sea Islands and the wildernesses of Peru, Chili, Guiana and Brazil, have all contributed to the parks, the gardens and the groves of Great Britain. The cedar of Lebanon, the most famous tree of the world, has been successfully and extensively cultivated in the British isles for hundreds of years. The beautiful and majestic Deodar cedar of Hindostan has been in successful cultivation in England for some twenty-five years. The Norway spruce, also, has long been a leading ornament of British parks and forests. At this time there are thousands of specimens of that gigantic red-wood of California, the Washingtonia gigantea, raised from the seed during the last three years, and now growing in the British isles. But very few of these noted, beautiful and valuable trees can be seen in the Atlantic States."

The last easterly blow was severe and effectually broke up the traps of the fishermen on the eastern shore of the bay. The loss is estimated at fifteen hundred dollars and falls very heavily on them.—The wreck was complete and the injury cannot be repaired in time to set the traps again this season.

At times the harbor has been well filled by mackerelmen, who run in on the first approach of foul weather. On Tuesday they had extraordinary luck, and the catch was very fine, but, as a general thing the returns are small, and as soon as all hands are busily engaged taking a shoal, the horse mackerel break in and put a stop to the fun. In this way the mackerel are driven about and become very wild. A few days since we learned the reason why mackerel cannot now be caught, as in former years, by trolling for them. Then a boat went off before a brisk breeze, followed by a shoal of mackerel, which almost jumped into the boat, and taking the hook as fast as it was thrown to them; but now they cannot be caught in this way, and for the following reason. Then the mackerel, while on the coast, as at other times, depended on small fish swimming near the surface, for food; but now, as soon as they strike the coast, they are fed by the large quantities of menhaden, used as bait, and which is constantly thrown over to them by the fishing vessels to "keep them round." The bait sinks some distance below the surface, and this places the fish, which follow it, out of sight of the hook thrown by the trollers. The fishermen have, consequently, changed their tactics, and now lay to and "bait up"; if they succeed in this, well; if not, not.

It is reported that the difficulties with the Mormons have been adjusted, the latter having decided to "move off" to some location beyond the jurisdiction of the United States; but by many the story is doubted, and we anxiously wait for its confirmation. If true, it will be a matter of rejoicing, for it will save us from a most disagreeable war and an enormous expense. Already immense sums have been squandered, and the expedition against the Great Salt Lake City has been very badly managed. But of these things we will say nothing, if we can but hear that the Mormons have quit our boundary forever.

We believe it was generally conceded on Election day that the Touro Park was vastly improved by taking away the paling around it. It appears much larger than formerly, and it would be difficult to find any man of taste who would willingly have the old fence restored, however much he may have opposed it at the start.

Wild pigeons are so abundant in the vicinity of Port Huron that the air is literally filled with them, and, to obtain a supply, all that is necessary is to strike at the flocks with poles. They are knocked down with the greatest ease, and the flocks are said to be enormous.

The Sunday trade in newspapers has been broken up in New York, and the public in that city is no longer to be annoyed by the crying of papers on that day.

It is not long since, at most but a few weeks, since the announcement of the success of Mr. Rarey, the American horse tamer, in subduing and rendering gentle and obedient the most vicious horses; and now we hear from all parts of the country of like wonders, performed by men who claim to have the same power over the horse. This is nothing remarkable, for it is usual for imitators to spring up, like mushrooms, as soon as one with more enterprise, or spirit, or genius than another, leads off and shows the way to fortune. And in this particular Mr. Rarey is not alone in his experience. Everything that is brought out and promises to do well, draws a crowd of imitators, as carrion draws flies; and they not only endeavor to derive benefit from other men's brains, but often claim to have been the originators of that which they have suddenly learned to understand and value. How many have disputed Dr. Jackson's claim to the discovery of the use of ether to prevent pain in severe operations, and hundreds of other, just such cases, might be presented, were it necessary. And so it is with patents. One cannot get out a patent of any kind without drawing around him a swarm of harpies, who pry into it and alter the design just enough to swear by and then reap the benefit of other men's labors. This has become so much of a nuisance that it frequently happens inventors prefer to employ their improvements in secret, that being the only way to keep entire control over that which has cost them so much, and which the laws of the country are not strong enough to protect. A sewing machine was something of a novelty a few years ago, and to the inventive mind of one man we owe it; sewing machines are now as thick as blackberries in June, and the names of manufacturers are almost as numerous—each claiming some new feature, and by the changing of a screw, or a variation in the movement, the maker escapes the charge of infringement. But the real infringement is in appropriating the original idea and so varying the expression that it cannot be called the precise thing patented, and yet all the spirit of the invention is there and it is used to the injury of the original inventor. With these facts before the public, it is not surprising that men who have the wit to invent are loth to take their designs to the patent office, where they are pretty sure to be filched, almost before the ink that registered them is dry.

In our last we expressed our views in regard to a lottery concern in Baltimore, and we are glad to see that the great Georgia scheme has been ripped up. It proves to be just what was expected—a bogus concern, managed by men who lived by plundering the public. It was broken up through the instrumentality of the Mayor of New York, aided by the Governor of Georgia. The scheme was called the "Sparta Academy Lottery," but the New York Courier & Enquirer says:—

> "There was a "Sparta Academy" lottery, franchised by an act of the State of Georgia, in 1826, but its license expired long since. The enterprise of Swan & Co. was established on the basis of its franchise, and claimed it to be still licensed and legal. Its head-quarters were at Atlanta, Georgia, where a grand edifice, measuring some 50x125 feet was devoted to the business. The receipts are said to have amounted to $250,000 per week, but Sergeant Birney was unable to discover that any prizes had ever been paid. Some small amounts may have been distributed, but it is certain that the $60,000 and other large prizes which they advertised so universally, were never won. In the case of Samuel Dickenson, the New York agent of this lottery which came up in the Courts last year, it leaked out that $95,000 was received by Benjamin Wood as his share of the profits of 1857. Receipts for $20,000 have been discovered by Sergeant Birney among the papers of the concern showing that that amount had been paid since the 1st of January to Mr. Wood."

Let those who are in the habit of squandering their money, in the vain hope of receiving one of the $60,000 prizes, ponder the above expose well.

A new gold field has been discovered on the Pacific coast, and on British soil. It is located on Frazer river, a stream five hundred miles long, and empties into the channel east of the southern part of Vancouver's Island, six miles from the American boundary. The gold discovered there was first brought to light by the Indians, and the search has been followed up by miners, chiefly Americans, with a spirit that promises soon to turn the heaps of dust into shining coin. The gold has a large admixture of silver, which diminishes its value, which set down at sixteen dollars per ounce. The diggers are confined to the banks and bars of the stream, and the returns are estimated to average eighty dollars a day per man. Hundreds are flocking to the point that sparkles so in their eyes, provisions are becoming scarce, and laborers are leaving their employers, to search for gold on their own hook. Eight dollars a day may seem like good wages for raking over a heap of sand and gravel, but when we consider that the miner has to pay a dollar and a quarter a pound for salt pork, and everything else in the same proportion, or starve, it reduces his earnings very rapidly, especially if he should not chance to hit on a deposit of gold.

As we were going to press on Friday evening of last week, we received the news of the accident to the steamer Bay State. The following are the particulars. The steamer was not severely injured and was only carried ashore by becoming entangled with the schooner:—

> "The captain of the schooner, instead of having sufficient hands to take care of his craft, had but himself and two boys, who were in the bows. The schooner's helm was lashed hard to the starboard, while he was attending to the boom, which got caught at the time. Capt. Jewett, of the Bay State, backed his vessel, but to no purpose. Instead of the schooner passing free, to do which she had plenty of room, she bore directly across the steamer, and buried her boom forward of the steamer's gangway, and crushed in her closets and storehouse. Both vessels were carried ashore."

In the list of deaths, reported for the week, will be found the name of Mr. George Cornell, one of the survivors of the Battle of Lake Erie.—Mr Cornell was one of the three hundred who left Newport with Com. Perry, and of that number only two are now alive—Dr. Parsons, of Providence, and Capt. Brownell, of this city.—The funeral of Mr. Cornell took place yesterday afternoon, and was attended by the Artillery Company, Officers from Fort Adams, Mayor and City Council, and a large concourse of citizens.

The weather continued up to yesterday to be wretchedly bad, and it could hardly be more disagreeable or unsatisfactory. A longer spell of easterly wind we have seldom known, and we anxiously looked for and hoped for a favorable change. The change is for the better.

On Thursday the Legislature was invited to visit Fort Adams, and in the afternoon, the Perry having been placed at their service, the members generally availed themselves of the opportunity to inspect that work and witness the drill of the Company now stationed there.

The Canadian government proposes to exempt journalists from jury duty. Canada boasts of two hundred and seven papers, of which twenty are daily: of these the Globe has the largest circulation—five thousand, and weekly fourteen thousand.

The late cold and wet weather, we see, has extended in all directions. The grass has not suffered, but seed planted some time since has not started, and the few varieties usually forward at this time, are very backward.

California is improving, a law has been enacted to enforce the observance of Sunday, and an effort will next be made to shut up the bar-rooms and grog shops on that day.

The Right Reverend Bishop Clark will preach in Zion Church on Wednesday evening next, June 2d, at 7½ o'clock, the appointment for Trinity Sunday being revoked.

There will be no service at Zion Church to-morrow.

Journalism vs. the People.—The publication of the English Mercurie in 1588, and Dean Swift's Tattler, in the reign of Queen Anne, may be accounted separate eras in the history of civilization. The invention of the printing art, and the Minerva-like birth of the Reformation, had already flung the brightening rays of an advancing morn through the parti-colored lattice of a blood-stained Gothic barbarism, and in the light, still but dim, the tearful worshipper felt the power of his intellect and the grandeur of his soul. Knowledge, divorced from the mystery of the Rosicrucian, offered her favors to all. Religion, freed from the incubus of multitudinous and heartless forms, taught men that in action and individual faith lies the race course and the goal. This, however, had been but the charge of the van. Kings still sat, with a semblance of security, upon their ancestral thrones.—Men still struggled with a despotism made fiercer and more gloomy, as the dawn revealed woes which had been hidden by the dark night. A feudalism more portentous seemed densely and hurriedly gathering in the world-sky, when the great civil war of England matured a power sufficient for the crisis.

The element thus called into a larger action was none other than the newspaper. This species of literature like the acta diurna of Cæsar's time, was originally a mere compilation of news. The high pitch to which party spirit rose in the grand constitutional revolution of 1640, opened a wide and favorable field for progress. It was not till nearly a century after, that the first step toward the rise of periodical literature was taken in the publication of the Tattler. The advancement since made by these two classes of fugitive composition, is as curious as it is startling. Their influence upon both the nation and the individual has been of momentous importance.

The advantages which have resulted to man in the mass, by the rise and ascension of this new and civilizing power, are only too obvious. In a political point of view, its effects are especially signal. Wherever a newspaper has been issued, a blow has been struck for freedom. Necessitating full liberty for itself, it cannot be untrue to others. And thence, and thus, the bulwarks of imperial oppressions have received the fiercest and most determined shocks. Does any one doubt it, let him glance at the last French revolution, and perceive how rapidly upon the overthrow of regal power, the magazine, the pamphlet and the newspaper, like the sown dragon teeth of ancient fable, sprang into active and hostile being. The birth of the Empire was the signal of decay—for there liberty is an exotic plant, which must pine when transplanted, if the hand of nurture is withdrawn.

Thus much for its political results. In the field of the mind its effects are scarcely less perceptible. The rapid progress of the printing art awoke a taste in the masses which it was only in the province of the cheap press to supply. The dissemination of pure knowledge has, therefore, become wide-spread. Men in the humblest walks of life have acquired a scientific education, in the possession of which the highest might have been proud. The arts and sciences have received an impetus from this unexpected channel sufficient to shake men's faith in castes and aristocracies seemingly forever. Nor is this all. We are disposed to make too great an idol of utility. But cui bono is not written in the eternal heavens. The nobler emotions of our nature cannot be judged by the low maximum of profit and loss. The literature of power, as distinct from knowledge, has had its gates thrown open and its sublime mysteries revealed through the instrumentality of the periodical. This result has been attained primarily from the subject-matter of the reviews; secondly, from the reflex of genius and intellect consequent to the talent involved. For thus much have the mechanical tendencies of this strange modern era effected, that the largest and noblest minds seek this method to promulgate the truths which are in them.

But there are two sides to every shield, and the brightest light makes the darkest shadow. If the stern rule of feudal oppression has been overturned, a no less imperious tyranny of public opinion has usurped its place. If the masses have been elevated, it has been at the expense of the individual. The law of physics seem equally true here,—the greater attracts the less. If periodical literature has pointed with guiding finger to the great master-spirits of all ages, it has been but a revamping of the Grecian Tantalus with the burning desire for an appeased thirst left out at the special request of the tantalized themselves. The great and primal cause of this intellectual degradation is the prevalence of that insidious and corrupting species of journalism—the popular weekly press. The empire of letters, considered in all various aspects, evinces the legitimate results of a long succession of these mock kings. Since literature has become a trade, those who would be "gig-men," as Carlyle styles them, must pander to popular tastes. Those who aspire to the higher circles of thought, involved in the isolation of their position, will be forced to stand aloof. A too great tendency either way is fatal. Should the centrifugal finally prevail, the consequences would be awful beyond the wildest imaginings. For if a Babylonian Ledger, a Police Gazette, or, to be very modern, a Gov. Dorr's Own, be the highest and holiest world-teachers, what must be the character of the lowest? Surely, inanity of thought and the maddest soul-riot would pave the way for a despotism without its precedent in history. The Reign of Terror has given us a peep behind such scenes. The centripetal, the inclination to an over-concentration would produce, by opposite means, the same effect. A night-mare of politics, with institutions assimilating to the Brahmin hierarchy, would rest upon the nation.—With the few, the mystery of nature and the God-like on earth would be penetrated, with the many the heavens would be leaden and the world dark.

Between these two extremes there can be to us no choice. Both are opposed to the spirit of our institutions. The humiliation of all that is noble and elevated in our nature, which must result from the omnipotence of that vicious and enervating literature to which we have referred, whether in the many or the few, is equally repugnant to the purposes of our mission. An aristocracy of talent on the other hand, if existant only among a few, merges into monarchism. The true aim of all republics is to make the many of the few, or to raise the masses to the level of the individual; and De Tocqueville in his Democracy in America, has asserted no clearer truth than that the genius of a democracy is a firm belief in man's perfectibility. It is, then, an evidence of wise discernment, that our daily journals are assuming a higher standard of literature and purpose. The profoundest thinker of the age has said, "The true Church of England at this moment lies in the Editors of Newspapers." On these the welfare and permanent success of the nation depend.

If with heroism of resolve their aim be upward, and in the true spirit of their apostleship they seek to elevate and advance, then will the object of our national existence be attained—the consummation of our success is sure. D.

Dr. A. J. Hopkins, of Connecticut, advertises for Monday next an exhibition of his powers over the horse. He has been in Fall River and New Bedford recently, and from the large number of certificates which he shows us, we presume he has the same command over the animal it is said Mr. Rarey possesses. Dr. Hopkins informs us that the article on our first page, in regard to horses, is false, that no drugs or anything of the kind is used, but merely kindness and teaching them his will. See advertisement.

The members of Aquidneck Engine Company paraded on Wednesday, under command of Capt. Sayer, and although the weather was anything but agreeable, they turned out in full ranks.—Gilmore's band furnished the music, and the streets were enlivened by the presence of the procession for several hours in the course of the day. The company made a fine appearance and is composed of an efficient body of men.

Yesterday morning Hon. Henry B. Anthony was elected United States Senator by the Legislature. This is a subject of congratulation. Gov. Anthony is a man of sterling worth—a man of large and extended views and one pledged to the best interests of the State and country, and every one who is at all acquainted with him will feel that he will reflect the highest honor on those who have elected him to this important post.

We would call the attention of our young readers to the advertisement of Mr. Carron, who proposes opening a Dancing School in this city. Mr. C. has been long known as a thorough teacher of this art, and we hope he will meet with sufficient encouragement.

We are requested to state that the Rev. E. A. Lyon, of the Thames street Mission, will preach at the corner of Washington and Willow streets (near Fort Greene) to-morrow afternoon at 6 o'clock, should the weather be favorable.

The question now asked milkmen in New York is "do you sell the long tail or stump tail milk"—the stump tail is one of the diseases that mark the swill-fed cows, of which we have heard so much.

Rev. Mr. Brown has accepted the call from Zion Church, and will shortly take charge of that parish.

Two vessels have already cleared from Detroit with a cargo direct for Liverpool, and other vessels, all schooners, will quickly follow for the same port. The trade with the lakes is on the increase, and will soon reach a very high figure.

New Feed for Bees.—One of the greatest troubles in bee-keeping appears to be the want of suitable food early in the spring to enable the swarm to prepare for a new colony that may go out early enough in the season to lay up not only their own stores for winter, but a surplus for their owners. Many swarms that have an abundance of honey for their own use and to spare in the Spring, are inactive for weeks after the Spring has become warm enough for them to work, because they have nothing to work upon. The first business is not to gather honey, but pollen, to make bread for the young bees. So, although the weather is warm enough, and the bees lively enough, until the buds afford pollen they have nothing to work upon to enable them to be in season with the new brood, to produce early swarms. This is a serious drawback in the late seasons and in situations where pollen producing plants are not plenty. Mr. E. T. Stuart, of Cleaveland, Ohio, claims that he has discovered a remedy for this difficulty, and that he can bring forward his bees some two months earlier, and get good swarms the first of May. His plan is to feed his bees with unbolted rye meal, strewn upon boards convenient to the hive, the bees pitching into it at once and working diligently, and in such an earnest way as fairly to scramble over one another. It is a hint worthy the attention of all bee keepers.

The Retired Physician.—The person who advertises in the papers as a 'Retired Physician whose sands have nearly run out,' is a young man named Oliver P. Brown, formerly a journeyman printer in Vermont. The medicine he claims will cure the consumption, it is pretended is Cannabis Indica, or Indian hemp, a very scarce and costly article, and a very dangerous medicine. But what he sends is nothing but a compound of such articles as cough mixtures are usually made of, costing, bottle and all, about sixteen cents, but for which he charges $2. Brown, who calls himself Dr. H. James, hires an old man named Kuyper, to personate the fictitious individual, for a small compensation. Brown is also in partnership with another person named Moquett, who has published a book telling people how to get rich by turning mercury into gold, with his large number of foolish recipes. They have swindled persons out of a large amount of money.

The Happiness of Kings and Queens.—A huge slice of the gardens of the Tuileries has been arbitrarily cut off from the use of the public and is about to be enclosed for that of the Emperor and Empress! I cannot tell you of the anger felt by the middle and lower classes at this. It comes from two causes, (I mean the imperial encroachment); first, from a wish to give, as usual, employment to the work people, and next, from the deadly fear felt by the empress every time she went abroad. This will give her a garden in which to walk privately, instead of daily being forced into long drives. Her alarm has ended by acting upon her health. A person looking the other day at the spot observed to a stander-by, 'Apres avoir confisque le bien de la famille d'Orleans, on va confisquer le notre.' It was Le Notre who was intrusted with the care of laying out the garden of the Tuileries.

Failures in England During the Commercial Pressure.—The London Times publishes a statement, showing the results of 151 of the suspensions, including five large banks, which occurred during the commercial crisis, with a total of liabilities to be met of about $207,000,000, and on which the deficiency now appears to be about 19 per cent. Out of 52 London firms 16 appear to have paid, or to be about to pay in full, while of the provincial houses the number that have attained this conclusion is only 9 out of 69. On an average the failures were for about $1,375,000 each; and, supposing the creditors to each firm apart from those which paid in full, to be thirty, the number of houses inconvenienced would be about 3180; and the average ultimate loss of each would be about $10,000. Nearly one third of the suspended houses in London have paid in full, and about one seventh in the provinces.

Man Over Niagara Falls.—The Rochester Union states that a man from the Canada side went over the Falls of Niagara on the 19th inst. He had been over to the American side in a sail boat and was returning when he was swept into the rapids, having, it is thought, by those who saw him, depended upon his sail long after he should have taken it down and resorted to his oars to save himself. The boat was actually in the rapids before the sail was lowered, and then it was too late. Who the man was is not known on the American side. Boat and man were lost sight of long before they reached the great fall.

The Gulf Fleet.—The U. S. vessels of war now on the Gulf station, and under orders for that station, are as follows:

Name of vessel.	Guns.
Steamer Colorado,	15
Steamer Fulton,	5
Steamer Wabash,	40
Steamer Water Witch,	2
Steamer Arctic,	2
Frigate Savannah,	50
Sloop Jamestown,	22
Brig Dolphin,	4

What the Leviathan is Good For.—In case the attempt to employ the Leviathan in commerce should result disastrously, it is suggested that she would make a good monument. Standing on end, the monster vessel would rise to more than three times the height of Bunker Hill Monument higher than the projected Washington Monument, higher than any monument in the world higher than the Pyramids. If nobody dies and nothing occurs, worthy to be commemorated by such a monument, then she might be used for the first section of a tubular bridge over the Mississippi.

Mr. Everett's Southern Tour.—Mr. Everett has returned from his Southern tour. Since the month of November he has repeated his discourse on "The Character of Washington" for the benefit of the Mount Vernon Fund, twenty-three times, with an aggregate net receipt of $14,645; and his address on 'Charity,' fourteen times, for various charitable institutions, with an aggregate net receipt of $12,433. The net proceeds of his oratorical labors for the last six months for the benefit of the Mount Vernon Fund and various charitable institutions, are $27,078.

The following sums are given as the amount received per year by the several army officers named:—

General Scott $18,292; General Wool, $9854; General Persifer F. Smith, $8119; Adjutant General Cooper, $5093; Major McDowell, $4020; Colonel Totten, $4648; General Harney, $5081; Colonel May, $8519, and says the general average receipts are—colonels, $4800; lieutenant colonels $4000; majors $3000; captains, $2500, lieutenants, $2000.

An animated competition has already commenced for the Brigadier Generalship, made vacant by the lamented death of General Smith, and before his funeral obsequies have been celebrated. Gen. Harney, Col Robert Lee, Col. Lay—who is only a lieutenant in the line, but an aid to Gen. Scott—and others named in this connection. The belief is that Harney will be selected, who sought the appointment when Smith carried off the honors.

The submarine expedition which left Boston for the purpose of raising the sunken ships in the harbor of Sebastopol, has returned, unsuccessful. It was found that the ships lying at the bottom of the harbor were so badly worm eaten and decayed, that the attempt to raise them must prove a failure. The expedition was therefore abandoned, and the vessels engaged in it were sold to defray expenses.

Profitable Catch.—A seine was drawn, on Wednesday, last week, at the Stone Bridge, Tiverton and five hundred barrels of scup were taken in. They were sold, on the spot, for five hundred dollars. Although larger hauls than this have been made, it is seldom that so large a return is received for one. Seven men were employed in this grand fishing operation.

The news from Illinois and Indiana is, that these states are pretty much drowned out. The prairies are full of water. The constant and heavy rains have beaten down the grain, rendered corn planting impossible. Ohio is a little better off. The prospect for crops of wheat and corn the coming season, in these two great grain growing States are certainly not flattering.

Ventilating Chairs patented February 1858, by I. R. Breisach, New York. The arrangement consists in placing under the chair a pair of bellows, so arranged as to be worked without wasting power in overcoming unnecessary friction. The artificial breeze blows upward, carrying up in whirlwind musketoes and flies, together with the surplus heat of the patient.

A lady is now living in Guilford, in New Haven county, Ct., who during her life time, has seen her great grandfather, and her great great grand child, with all the successive generations between, being eight generations. The great great grandchild lives in Madison.

Death in the Cup.—Hunt's Merchant's Magazine enumerates no less than thirty eight substances which are employed to give potency, flavor, consistance, and other desireable qualities to Lager beer.—Among them are chalk, marble dust, opium, tobacco, henbane, oil of vitriol, copperas, alum, strychnine, and other deadly drugs. These drugs diminish the intoxicating effect of the liquor, while they greatly increase its potency to kill. But this is all to the advantage of the dealer, because the customer can drink a much larger quantity without "making drunk come," although he will make disease and death come in double quick time.

Excitement in Burlington, Vt.—There has been considerable excitement in Burlington, Vt., for a few days past, on the subject of the removal of the remains of Gen. Ethan Allen. The ceremonies of laying the corner stone of the monument ordered by the State, have been deferred and the authorities of the town and committe of the monument have made thorough research, to the depth of six to eight feet, in all parts of the family lot not known to be occupied by the remains of other members of the family, where his monument stood without finding the slightest indication of human remains.

On Wednesday the corner stone of a monument to be erected in honor of Col. William Washington, the heroic commander of the Legion Cavalry, of South Carolina, during the revolutionary war, was laid in Magnolia Cemetery, at Charleston, with imposing ceremonies. The Hon. Wm. P. Miles was the orator. On the 28th of June, the corner stone of the monument in honor of Mr. Calhoun, to be erected by the Ladies' Association, will be laid in Citadel Square, at Charleston. Hon. L. M. Kent will be the orator.

Death from the Blow of a Boy's Fist.—In London, lately, two boys were fighting, when a policeman came along and advised one of the boys to strike the other under the left ear. The advice was followed, but after two blows, the lad so struck fell insensible, was taken into a shop, and in a few minutes died, a blood-vessel having been broken, which overflowed the brain. The survivor has been arrested on the charge of murder, and the police officer as an accessory.

A Curiosity.—Among a brood of chickens, hatched in this city a few days ago, was one which had only one leg. It is as lively as the rest of its comrades and hops around with as much vivacity, though it is obliged frequently to pick itself up, not yet having perfectly acquired the art of keeping its equilibrium. Such a race would be valuable to perpetuate as they could not scratch in the garden.—N. B. Standard.

American Tea a Failure.—Those who have made the experiment of raising tea in this country say the plant will grow well enough, but wages are too high. They cannot afford to pick, roll up and dry any sort of leaves here for a half dollar a pound. In China, where a man is hired for a dollar a month and board himself, it may be done.

A Texas paper says that the wheat crop there is ready for the scythe. This will sound odd in the ears of northern farmers whose wheat has scarcely begun to grow. The United States have so extended that they include already nearly every variety of soil and climate, and are therefore competent to the production of almost every species of vegetation in the world.

The French riflemen are to be armed with double barrelled guns in future, and an experiment will be made with a few companies at first. Upwards of $180,000 are to be raised to purchase Napoleon's house and tomb at St. Helena. Louis Napoleon has completed his 50th year, having been born at the Tuileries on the 20th of April, 1808.

A Stiff Quaker.—A friend entered the Canadian House of Assembly, last week, wearing his hat, as is the custom with Quakers. The Sergeant at-Arms waited upon him, desiring him to uncover. Refusing to do so, he was assisted by the officer, who removed the hat and laid it on the bench at his side. The Quaker did not attempt to replace it.

Orange Wine.—A Spanish journal states that in consequence of the abundance of the growth of oranges of an excellent quality, in the South of Spain, and the difficulty of disposing of them for exportation at a good price, several of the growers convert them into wine, which is said to be of a delicious quality, and resembling much in flavor the wine of Madeira.

The Latest Fashion.—Letters from Paris report that parasols in fashion this season are small, and composed of rich satin or silk, woven expressly for the purpose. They are generally without fringes, having instead a flounce cut in large scallops of vandyke.

The late Governor of Canton, Governor Yeh, who is now a prisoner on board the Inflexible, protests that he never tasted cold water in the whole course of his life, and thinks that if he did it would be the death of him! His drink has always been weak tea.

Rev. Henry Wood, a chaplain in the U. S. Navy, writing from St. Helena, says that in the room where Napoleon died there is now a threshing machine in operation and stalls for the horses that move it, in his bed-chamber.

Fire in Tiverton.—About one o'clock yesterday afternoon a barn belonging to Gideon Cornell, situated in Tiverton, was discovered to be on fire and with its contents was entirely consumed.

The working days in Switzerland are from fourteen to nineteen hours. Wages for children five cents per day; women from sixteen to thirty; men from forty to fifty.

Lamartine's debt amounts to 2,600,000 francs. It is said the Emperor intends to apply to the Legislature to pay them.

The Shah of Persia is said to have spent 500,000 francs in getting up an illustrated edition of "The Arabian Nights."

An English paper publishes a sketch of the life of a prisoner composed by him in Winchester jail. The original is in the shape of a printed book; the letters and words all having been cut out of waste paper by the man with his finger nails, no knife or scissors were allowed. After cutting out the words suitable to his purpose, he carefully pasted them in proper order to form a small book, comprising twenty-two pages. A piece of poetry, addressed to the prisoner's wife, is included in this singular literary curiosity.

PROF. WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE.—In our advertising columns is to be found an advertisement of this popular Restorative. We know nothing of its merits ourselves, we read, but that is sufficient, particularly when we see the testimony of its efficacy as the following, which we clip from the Ottawa Free Trader.

"Having tried successively sundry highly recommended 'hair tonics' on our own half denuded crown, we had lost all confidence in nostrums of that sort, until a week ago we met a distinguished politician of this State, whom we had seen three years ago with thin hair and 'as grey as a rat,' but now boasting as fine a head of hair as one could wish. We demanded the secret of his improved appearance, which he readily accounted for it by ascribing it to the virtues of Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative. We shall try that soon."

ROOFING! ROOFING!!

MASTIC ROOFING.

E. F. RUSSEL'S PATENT.

The public are aware that it has been the study of scientific men, architects and builders for many years to discover an article for roofing purposes that will withstand the sudden changes incident to this climate, be impervious to water, and a sure protection against fire. The inventor of this roofing labored many years to combine articles which would answer the above purposes, and obviate the difficulties of rust and decay attendant upon tin and shingles, and the destruction by the sun and frost of the various compositions used for roofing. This he succeeded in doing, and now after six years of the severest trial we would invite the careful attention of all interested in such matters, believing that they will be fully convinced of its practical value both for durability and cheapness, in which respects we believe that its equal is not at present known. This roofing can readily be applied to roofs of every description, either steep or flat, and can be put on over shingles or tin at much less expense than the first, and at half the cost of the latter. Two coats of the mastic put on over an old, leaky tin roof will make it as good as new at one fifth of the cost. In preparing this roofing a heavy drilling or canvass is used, which is thoroughly saturated with a perfectly water proof preparation, after which it receives a thick coating, upon both sides, of the flour of soapstone, which sets into the texture of the canvass, and gives it a firm body, making it very elastic and durable.—After the canvass as prepared, is put upon the roof, another coating of mastic which is thoroughly filled with sand is given it, making it fire proof in every respect. By exposure this coating becomes firm and solid, giving you a roof that can be walked upon with perfect impunity, and as durable as anything known; and we do most candidly and unhesitatingly believe, far superior to anything of the kind yet discovered; and after a severe test of many years, stands as reliable and good as when first put on, without change or decay. All that we ask is, that a careful examination may be given it, and we feel convinced that it will bear all the recommendation which we offer of it. Annexed we give you the names of some of the many persons using this roofing, and to whom we are at liberty to refer:

Wolfe's Celebrated Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps.

This medicinal beverage is manufactured by the proprietor, at Schiedam, Holland, expressly for medicinal use, by a process peculiar to his own Factory. It is the pure Tincture of the Italian Juniper Berry, whose more choice extract is distilled and rectified with its spirituous solvent, which thus becomes a concentrated tincture of exquisite flavor and aroma, altogether transcending in its cordial and medicinal properties any alcoholic stimulant now made in the world. It is now prescribed by more than 3,000 physicians in the United States, in cases of Gravel, Gout, Dropsy, Bladder and Kidney Complaints.

Put up in Quart and Pint Bottles, in cases of one dozen, and cases of two dozen pints, and for sale by all the Druggists and Country Merchants.

CLEMENT & WILLIE'S

WASHING MACHINE:

SUPERIOR TO ANY IN USE!

PATENTED MARCH 13TH, 1855.

THIS MACHINE is in point of fact the only Washing Machine now in use. It excells all others in thoroughness and speed. It is very compact, light, simple in its construction and requires but very little power for its operation. It washes the clothes with as little and even less wear than by hand. It will wash the finest lace collar or a heavy bed blanket without any change or different arrangement of the Machine. It washes every article separately and clean, consequently requiring no finishing on the common wash board as is the case with all the other machines.

In offering this machine for sale, we feel confident we are offering no humbug,—nothing but what we know to be a good and reliable machine and needs only to be used to be appreciated.

We make this statement strong, and if need be, can bring forward hundreds who will endorse the statement.

It is within the reach of every family, the price being only $8.00, and will pay for itself in a very short time. It is durable and not liable to get out of order. It can be moved with as much ease as a common wash tub.

MANNY'S

Mowing Machine.

Fellow Farmers, I would call your attention again to the YEOMAN'S FRIEND, with its improvements for 1858, which may be seen by stepping into John D. Dennis' Store, Broad street, Newport, R. I., where you will also find our circular (free) containing testimony from all parts of the country as to the superiority of the "Manny" machine over all others, but especially R. I. testimony of reliable men, (see pages 6 and 7, and 15 and 16,) sufficient to convince the most skeptical, that it is an all important implement in economical farming.

At the request of the Manufacturer I have extended the territory of my agency, and would say to the farmers of Narragansett as well as to those of Newport Co., that I will forward to their order a perfect article at the Manufacturers' prices, and give my personal attention to the setting up and starting of each machine.

The principal improvement for 1858 is a caster wheel under the pole which takes the bearing from the horses necks and makes a third bearing so that the knife bar can be elevated from 1-2 inch to 18 inches, and the machine run upon the three wheels avoiding the friction in all other machines when the knife bar drags on the ground.

Farmers of the island wishing circulars or any other information in regard to the machine, by dropping me a line will be promptly responded to.

I deem it unnecessary to detail the many reasons why this is the best adapted machine in use, as I know that no Farmer thinking of getting a mower will do so without seeing the "Manny," and knowing that no Farmer who has seen it will fail to perceive that it is just what he wants.

The additional expense of $10 gives you the reaper attachment so that you can cut from 10 to 15 acres of grain per day at any required height.

Don't delay your orders too late; don't say as some of my last year's customers said, "If I thought it would do what it is recommended to do I would have one at once." They came near waiting too long, yet they now say that they have saved the expense of the machine in one season.

Don't forget that it can be operated by oxen as well as horses, and that common farm horses are all sufficient.

Extras of every part of the Machine will be kept constantly on hand.

P. S. Address me at Newport, in care of J. G. Weaver, Ocean House.

THE LIVER

INVIGORATOR!

PREPARED BY DR. SANFORD,

Compounded Entirely From GUMS.

IS ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE AND LIVER MEDICINES now before the public, that acts as a cathartic, easier, milder and more effectual than any other medicine known. It is not only a cathartic, but a liver remedy, acting first on the liver to eject its morbid matter, then on the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter, thus accomplishing two purposes effectually without any of the painful feelings experienced in the operations of most Cathartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it; and when taken daily in moderate doses, will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity.

SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR

The liver is one of the principal regulators of the human body; and when it performs its functions well, the powers of the system are fully developed. The stomach is almost entirely dependent on the healthy action of the Liver for the proper performance of its functions; when the stomach is at fault, the bowels are at fault, and the whole system suffers in consequence of one organ—the Liver—having ceased to do its duty. For the diseases of that organ, one of the proprietors has made it his study, in a practice of more than twenty years to find some remedy wherewith to counteract the many derangements to which it is liable.

To prove that this remedy is at last found, any person troubled with Liver Complaint in any of its forms, has but to try a bottle, and conviction is certain.

These Gums remove all morbid or bad matter from the system, supplying in their place a healthy flow of bile, invigorating the stomach, causing food to digest well, Purifying the Blood, giving tone and health to the whole machinery, removing the cause of the disease—effecting a radical cure.

Bilious attacks are cured and, What is better, prevented, by the occasional use of the Liver Invigorator.

One dose after eating is sufficient to relieve the stomach and prevent the food from rising and souring.

Only one dose taken before retiring, prevents Nightmare.

Only one dose taken at night, loosens the bowels gently and cures Costiveness.

One dose taken after each meal will cure Dyspepsia.

☞ One dose of two teaspoonful will always relieve Sick Headache.

One bottle taken for female obstruction removes the cause of the disease, and makes a perfect cure.

Only one dose immediately relieves Cholic, while

One dose often repeated is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus, and a preventive of Cholera.

☞ Only one bottle is needed to throw out of the system the effects of medicine after a long sickness.

☞ One bottle taken for Jaundice removes all sallowness or unnatural color from the skin.

One dose taken a short time before eating gives vigor to the appetite and makes food digest well.

One dose often repeated cures Chronic Diarrhoea in its worst forms, while Summer and Bowel complaints yield almost to the first dose.

One or two doses cures attacks caused by Worms in Children; there is no surer, safer or speedier remedy in the world, as it never fails.

☞ A few bottles cures Dropsy by exciting the absorbents.

We take pleasure in recommending this medicine as a preventive for Fever and Ague, Chill Fever, and all Fevers of a Bilious Type. It operates with certainty, and thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful virtues.

ALL WHO USE IT ARE GIVING THEIR UNANIMOUS TESTIMONY IN ITS FAVOR.

Mix Water in the Mouth with the Invigorator, and swallow both together.

THE LIVER INVIGORATOR

IS A SCIENTIFIC MEDICAL DISCOVERY, and is daily working cures, almost too great to believe. It cures as if by magic, even the first dose giving benefit, and seldom more than one bottle is required to cure any kind of Liver Complaint, from the worst Jaundice or Dyspepsia to a common headache, all of which are the result of a diseased liver.

Medicines.

Ayer's Pills

Are particularly adapted to derangements of the digestive apparatus, and diseases arising from impurity of the blood. A large part of all the complaints that afflict mankind originate in one of these, and consequently these Pills are found to cure many varieties of disease.

Subjoined are the statements from some eminent physicians, of their effects in their practice.

AS A FAMILY PHYSIC.
From Dr. E. W. Cartwright, of New Orleans.

"Your PILLS are the prince of purges. Their excellent qualities surpass any cathartic we possess. They are mild, but very certain and effectual in their action on the bowels, which makes them invaluable to us in the daily treatment of disease."

FOR JAUNDICE AND ALL LIVER COMPLAINTS.
From Dr. Theodore Bell, of New York City.

"Not only are your PILLS admirably adapted to their purpose as an aperient, but I find their beneficial effects upon the Liver very marked indeed. They have in my practice proved more effectual for the cure of bilious complaints than any one remedy I can mention. I sincerely rejoice that we have at length a purgative which is worthy the confidence of the profession and the people."

DYSPEPSIA — INDIGESTION.
From Dr. Henry J. Knox, of St. Louis.

"The PILLS you were kind enough to send me have been all used in my practice, and have satisfied me that they are truly an extraordinary medicine. So peculiarly are they adapted to the diseases of the human system, that they seem to work upon them alone. I have cured some cases of dyspepsia and indigestion with them, which had resisted the other remedies we commonly use. Indeed I have experimentally found them to be effectual in almost all the complaints for which you recommend them."

DYSENTERY — DIARRHŒA — RELAX.
From Dr. J. G. Green, of Chicago.

"Your PILLS have had a long trial in my practice, and I hold them in esteem as one of the best aperients I have ever found. Their alterative effect upon the liver makes them an excellent remedy, when given in small doses, for bilious dysentery and diarrhœa. Their sugar-coating makes them very acceptable and convenient for the use of women and children."

INTERNAL OBSTRUCTION—WORMS—SUPPRESSION.
From Mrs. E. Stuart, who practises as a Physician and Midwife in Boston.

"I find one or two large doses of your PILLS, taken at the proper time, are excellent promotives of the natural secretion when wholly or partially suppressed, and also very effectual to cleanse the stomach and expel worms. They are so much the best physic we have that I recommend no other to my patients."

CONSTIPATION — COSTIVENESS.
From Dr. J. P. Vaughn, Montreal, Canada.

"Too much cannot be said of your PILLS for the cure of costiveness. If others of our fraternity have found them as efficacious as I have, they should join me in proclaiming it for the benefit of the multitudes who suffer from that complaint, which, although bad enough in itself, is the progenitor of others that are worse. I believe costiveness to originate in the liver, but your PILLS affect that organ and cure the disease."

IMPURITIES OF THE BLOOD — SCROFULA — ERYSIPELAS — SALT RHEUM — TETTER — TUMORS — RHEUMATISM — GOUT — NEURALGIA.
From Dr. Ezekiel Hall, Philadelphia.

"You were right, Doctor, in saying that your PILLS purify the blood. They do that. I have used them of late years in my practice, and agree with your statements of their efficacy. They stimulate the excretories, and carry off the impurities that stagnate in the blood, engendering disease. They stimulate the organs of digestion, and infuse vitality and vigor into the system.

"Such remedies as you prepare are a national benefit, and you deserve great credit for them."

FOR HEADACHE—SICK HEADACHE—FOUL STOMACH—PILES—DROPSY—PLETHORA—PARALYSIS—FITS—&C.
From Dr. Edward Boyd, Baltimore.

"DEAR DR. AYER: I cannot answer you what complaints I have cured with your PILLS better than to say all that we ever treat with a purgative medicine. I place great dependence on an effectual cathartic in my daily contest with disease, and believing as I do that your PILLS afford us the best we have, I of course value them highly."

☞ Most of the Pills in market contain Mercury, which, although a valuable remedy in skilful hands, is dangerous in a public pill, from the dreadful consequences that frequently follow its incautious use. These contain no mercury or mineral substance whatever.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Has long been manufactured by a practical chemist, and every ounce of it under his own eye, with invariable accuracy and care. It is sealed and protected by law from counterfeits, and consequently can be relied on as genuine, without adulteration. It supplies the surest remedy the world has ever known for the cure of all pulmonary complaints; for COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, ASTHMA, CROUP, WHOOPING COUGH, BRONCHITIS, INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION, and for the relief of consumptive patients in advanced stages of the disease. As time makes these facts wider and better known, this medicine has gradually become the best reliance of the afflicted, from the log cabin of the American peasant to the palaces of European kings. Throughout this entire country, in every state and city, and indeed in almost every hamlet it contains, CHERRY PECTORAL is known as the best of all remedies for diseases of the throat and lungs. In many foreign countries it is extensively used by their most intelligent physicians. If there is any dependence on what men of every station certify it has done for them; if we can trust our own senses when we see the dangerous affections of the lungs yield to it; if we can depend on the assurance of intelligent physicians, whose business is to know; in short, if there is any reliance upon any thing, then is it irrefutably proven that this medicine does cure the class of diseases it is designed for, beyond any and all other remedies known to mankind. Nothing but its intrinsic virtues, and the unmistakable benefit conferred on thousands of sufferers, could originate and maintain the reputation it enjoys. While many inferior remedies have been thrust upon the community, have failed, and been discarded, this has gained friends by every trial, conferred benefits on the afflicted they can never forget, and produced cures too numerous and remarkable to be forgotten.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY,
CONSUMPTION CURABLE
BY THE USE OF
FOUSEL'S PABULUM VITÆ!

This VEGETABLE PRODUCTION has proved itself to be the most remarkable medical preparation ever discovered, for the effectual cure of PULMONARY CONSUMPTION,
and also of COUGHS, COLDS, SORENESS OF THE CHEST, BRONCHIAL IRRITATION, and other affections of the air passages, which have a tendency to produce that fatal MALADY in those predisposed.

This wonderful discovery, from its volatile nature, gives vapors freely, and consequently acts DIRECTLY upon the Lungs and Air Passages, arrests the development of tubercles in the lungs, and in their softening process causes the matter to be expectorated without difficulty, and effectually heals the ulcerated cavity; it quiets the cough, subdues the night sweats, the hectic fever and the chills, and restores the healthy functions to all the organs of the body. A trial of one bottle will speedily convince the most skeptical of its astonishing efficacy and its superiority to all other specifics.

Certificate of Dr. A. A. HAYES in reference to the curative virtues of this great discovery:

"This preparation, by chemical analysis, was proved to be free from Opium or any of its compounds; nor were any of the alkaloids present. It does not contain any mercurial or mineral substance, but consists wholly of volatile, diffusible agents, which afford vapors freely at a moderate temperature. Most of the substances present are officinally used in treating pulmonary disease; but the device by which they are combined is new and original, and adapts the compound to inhalation, or other modes of administration."

Respectfully,
(Signed) "A. A. HAYES, State Assayer."
16 Boylston street, Boston, Dec. 19, 1857.

DIRECTIONS in English, French and German accompany each package. PRICE, $3 per bottle.

All orders by mail or express, accompanied by the money, will be promptly attended to.

"Buy Me and I'll do you Good"

Now is the time to use the great Spring and Summer Medicine

Dr. Langley's Root and Herb Bitters

Composed of SARSAPARILLA, WILD CHERRY, YELLOW DOCK, PRICKLY ASH, THOROUGHWORT, RHUBARB, MANDRAKE, DANDELION, &c.,—all of which are so compounded as to act in concert and assist nature in eradicating disease.

The effect of this medicine is most wonderful—it acts directly upon the bowels and blood, by removing all obstructions from the internal organs, stimulating them into healthy action, renovating the fountains of life and vigor, purifying the blood, cleansing it from all humors, and causing it to course anew through every part of the body. They search and eradicate from the system Liver Complaint—that main wheel of so many diseases—Jaundice in its worst forms, all Billious Diseases and Foul Stomach, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Humors of the Blood and Skin, Indigestion, Headache, Dizziness, Piles, Heartburn, Weakness, Pain in the Side and Bowels, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, and all kindred complaints caused by a torpid or diseased Liver, a disordered stomach, or bad blood, to which all are more or less subject in spring and summer.

If taken in large doses, Fever and Ague may be broken up and cured at once. This has become a standard medicine, and is decidedly the best the world ever saw.
